Todd Peat recalled days at Johnson Elementary School in Mesa, where he spent his early years, and came up with a perfect way to thank his onetime alma mater for helping to aim him toward success. He picked the school to make his long-awaited college announcement, and used the opportunity to encourage younger kids to follow in his footsteps. Peat's friends and relatives also were on hand for the event.

For a football standout, his family and friends, a long-awaited day of decision finally arrives

By Alex Zener

Arizona lost one of its top 2011 football recruits when Corona del Sol defensive lineman Todd Peat Jr. decided on the eve of the National Signing Day to choose Nebraska over Arizona State University.

Peat told University of Nebraska head coach Bo Pelini late Tuesday that he would be signing his national letter of intent with the Cornhuskers.

After analyzing over and over again the typical issues—playing time, location, academics, practice facilities and coaching—he said his decision came down to the talk he had with Nebraska's coach last Friday night.

"My decision was ultimately determined by Coach Pelini's home visit," said Peat. "I knew from our conversation that he believed in me and my abilities. I felt like he would allow me to believe in myself and accomplish the things I know I can."

Other aspects of the university had also caught Peat's attention during his Nebraska visit in late November, he said.

"I enjoyed the campus, the college atmosphere, and the long-standing tradition that the University of Nebraska offers when I went on my official visit," said Peat.

Peat formally announced his decision Feb. 2 at Johnson Elementary School in Mesa,

‘Equal opportunity’ valedictorians

More students now eligible to give graduation speeches

By Mark Crudup

For the first time this year, Corona del Sol graduation will include two student speakers who may or may not be valedictorian and salutatorian.

Changes to previous years’ graduation tradition will be implemented for this year’s graduating seniors. This allowed any student ranking in the top 5 percent of the class to apply for “academic speaker” at the graduation ceremony, said Renee Howard, Corona del Sol High School site council member.

Students with a 2.5 grade-point average or higher were able to apply for the speaker position.

“All of those students (in the top five percent of their class) exhibit valedictorian characteristics,” Howard said.

“So we wanted to give those students an equal opportunity to speak at graduation.”

In past years, Corona speakers were solely valedictorian and salutatorian students, a tradition shared with most other local high schools.

“Corona is the only high school to do this (allow applicants for speaker positions),” Howard said. “It was an effort to give the opportunity to those who have a strong desire to speak at graduation.”

Both positions require that students have no “off-campus suspensions” during their high school career,

For a lovable Valentine's Day bauble, there's bear-ly time left

Dave Kendall, owner of Day's Fine Jewelry, and his wife, Norma, are getting ready to play cupid this Valentine's Day, one of the year's busiest holidays. It's the time when couples traditionally splurge on the most extravagant remembrances, even on un-extravagant budgets. Kendall promises the perfect gift, no matter what that budget might be. as well as no "major" disciplinary or academic referrals, as outlined in the student handbook, Howard said.

Selected students who applied for speaking positions will write speeches at a "writing day" exercise on Saturday, Feb. 19, during one of three separate writing sessions.

Potential candidates were required to submit a screening application.

Students ranked one and two in their class will be automatically submitted in the application process.

Interested students can contact Justine Centanni at 480-752-8818 or Renee Howard at 480-783-3341 for information.

Utilization increasing at youth services center

Outreach teams hit the streets in search of teens needing help

Tempe's Tumbleweed Center for Youth Development saw a significant change in the number of youth utilizing its resources in the past year, executive director Dick Geasland said. "We've had a lot more usage."

The increase was not unexpected.

"It's just a factor of the economy, our new location and changing the age limit from 22 to 25."

Tumbleweed is a nonprofit organization that provides emergency shelter and services for runaway youth and serves those who are abused, abandoned, troubled or neglected.

The new Tempe center is located downtown, on Mill Avenue.

"We have an outreach team in Tempe and in Phoenix," he said. "They are very visible and are out there in the community to identify those who need help."

Tumbleweed volunteers visit Tempe schools, as well, to educate students on the resources that are available.

"We try to get in the door to wherever we can to help these kids," Geasland said. "Some (of the schools) don't get it though, because they think we're giving resources to kids who run away."

Tumbleweed serves clients 12 to 25 years old. Both the Tempe and Phoenix centers provide a wide range of resources for any youth experiencing homelessness, Geasland said.

"We start with basic needs, food and shelter," he said. "There are showers and washing machines, computers and phones. We also have job servers and a job developer."

Tumbleweed also provides temporary and permanent housing for youth over the age of 18, as well as shelters that can be immediately available for those under 18, Geasland said.

Older youth who feel ready can utilize transitional housing, and even work toward gaining a permanent apartment.

Eventually, they can get help searching for job and preparing for interviews.

After finding a job, they are required to pay up to 30 percent of their salary toward the rental costs of an apartment. For those who are under 18, the shelter requires them to save 50 percent of their income from jobs, which they get back when completing the program, Geasland said.

"We have approximately 150 kids in the workforce program right now," he said. "Most are probably using our other services, as well."

Tumbleweed also provides a learning center, which includes a GED program and a high school, Geasland said.

'Spirit of Tempe' award to recognize noted area activist

Longtime south Tempe resident Dave Cutty has been named recipient of the Tempe Chamber of Commerce's "Spirit of Tempe" Award, to be presented Feb. 18 at the 14th annual Breakfast for Chamber Champions.

The award recognizes lifetime achievements of service, dedication and contribution to the community and honors hard work and strong commitment to improving the quality of life in Tempe.

More than 40 years ago, Cutty was a college student who found himself touched by the friendship he developed with a young man with a serious disability. It was at that time that he dedicated his life to making a difference in the lives of individuals with disabilities.

He has never wavered from that commitment. Cutty has led The Centers for Habilitation over the years, and under his direction TCH has become one of the premier organizations in the nation providing services to individuals with disabilities.

Along that journey he never forgot his role as a citizen of the Tempe community. Cutty has served on numerous boards and commissions and was a member of Tempe Leadership Class I, later serving on its board of directors and helping blaze a trail for one of the most successful leadership programs in the Valley.

In addition, he has received the Don Carlos Humanitarian Award, the City of Tempe Pride of the City Award and the National Council of Work Centers Management Excellence Award, among others.

He has helped to show thousands of individuals with disabilities how to become productive and active members within their community.

He has done this with a solid display of humanity, ethics and humor, according to Mary Ann Miller, president and CEO of the Tempe Chamber.

"Dave Cutty's work has literally changed the lives of thousands of people. Dave has great business sense, and gets involved throughout the community. He not only lives his passion, he instills that passion in others," said Miller.

Breakfast for Chamber Champions is scheduled 7:30 a.m. Feb. 18 at Tempe Mission Palms Hotel.

The public is invited to attend and may purchase tickets by calling (480) 967-7891 or visiting www.tempechamber.org.

"All of our youth have access to our learning center," he said. "We have a high school that is part of the Maricopa Regional School District, with about 45 kids enrolled."

The underlying theme of Tumbleweed is to give Arizona's youth a safe place to stay and get help, Geasland said.

Accordingly, the organization is also an affiliate of Safe Place, a national program that originated from the YMCA, and provides a location where youth can get help, from Circle K's to other local businesses.

Companies involved in the Safe Place program train their employees to help any youth who comes in with homelessness issues.

"They make a commitment to deal with young people differently," he said.

"If they can't help them, they call us immediately and we arrange to have them picked up and taken to one of the centers."

Local Safe Place locations include QuickTrip and Arizona Federal Credit Union.

"The first message is don't run away, but if you do go to a Safe Place (where signs indicate that company's affiliation with the program)."

Mark Moorhead's 'Best of' listing of all-time romantic film classics

By M.V. Moorhead

Flowers wilt. Candy endangers the waistline. Jewelry endangers the credit card. But a good romantic movie can make for a world-class Valentine's Day.

Choosing the right Valentine's movie is an art, however. Every taste must be taken into account, of course, but so must the danger of over-familiarity. Few would question that, say, Casablanca or The Shop Around the Corner or West Side Story or King Kong or Moonstruck or Room With a View or An Officer and a Gentleman are fine love stories, but such obvious choices may land with a thud. Here are a few choices that may set the heart aflutter:

French Kiss (1995)—Meg Ryan, as an uptight American expat in Canada, pursues her straying fiancé Timothy Hutton to Paris, gets stranded, and falls in with scruffy, shady Frenchman Kevin Kline. Guess what happens? This wry, mature comedy, hinging on Ryan's best performance and one of Kline's, may be the most underappreciated movie romance of the last two decades.

Roxanne (1987)—Steve Martin wears the big schnoz in this 20th-Century American version of the Cyrano myth. Daryl Hannah is the glorious title character, and Rick Rossovitch is the unworthy clod to whom Martin feeds silver-tongued eloquence. Martin also scripted this delightful small-town comedy.

Pride & Prejudice (2005)—Deftly directed by Joe Wright, this version of Jane Austen's masterpiece has speed and informality and lush visual beauty, and it's full of eccentric, genuinely funny performances, by Keira Knightley as Lizzie and touching, sad-faced Matthew Mcfadyen as her Darcy, but also by Brenda Blethyn and Donald Sutherland as her parents, Judy Dench as Darcy's disapproving aunt, and Tom Hollander as the excruciating Mr. Collins, among many others. Ang Lee's superb 1995 version of Sense and Sensibility is a fine choice too, if you and your sweetie are in an Austen sort of mood.

The Goodbye Girl (1977)—Richard Dreyfuss won his Best Actor Oscar for his performance in the Neil Simon comedy. Marsha Mason plays the title character, a former dancer and single mother who's forced to share her Manhattan apartment with charming-if-hyper actor Dreyfuss. She's recently been dumped by another actor, so Dreyfuss is swimming upstream in his efforts to win her heart. With Quinn Cummings as her daughter, with whom Dreyfuss bonds, and Paul Benedict, hilarious as an addle-brained Shakespearean director.

Same Time, Next Year (1978)— Meeting once a year for a quarter-century at a cottage on the Pacific coast, a man and a woman, both married, catch each other up on their lives before spending the night together. Bernard Slade's theatrical conceit about this improbably tidy annual adultery is made convincing, trendy '70s dialogue and all, but the heartfelt work of its cast of two: Alan Alda and Ellen Burstyn at her most beautiful.

Imagine Me & You (2005)—Piper Perabo is on her way up the aisle to marry Matthew Goode when she spots florist Lena Headey and they fall in love. The complications that arise from this startling development make up the rest of this civilized, good-hearted, sometimes wistful comedy. Celia Imrie stands out in the supporting cast as Perabo's Mum.

What's Up, Doc? (1972)—Peter Bogdanovich's homage to classic screwball comedies has become a classic itself. Ryan O'Neal is a mild-mannered musicologist whose world is rocked by wacky Barbara Streisand; the two of them get caught up in an intrigue involving mixed-up identical luggage. The terrific cast includes Kenneth Mars, Austin Pendelton and the great Madeline Kahn, and Streisand and O'Neal sing one of the best love songs ever, "You're the Top," over the end titles.

Jackie Brown (1977)—I know, this is a crime movie and it includes several murders, but I include it here because the last thing anyone, fans or detractors alike, expected from director Quentin Tarantino was a mature love story. But this caper, based on Elmore

Leonard's novel Rum Punch, hinges on the growing love between middle-aged bailbondsman Max Cherry (Robert Forster, in the role of his career), and the title character (Pam Grier), a middle-aged flight attendant in peril. If you haven't seen it, check it out.

Beauty and the Beast (1991)—Disney's animated musical-comedy version of the classic myth is quite wonderful, but don't forget Jean Cocteau's exquisite live-action version of 1946, with Josette Day and Jean Marais in the respective title roles.

The Princess Bride (1987)—Title character Robin Wright is rescued from marriage to rat-fink Prince Chris Sarandon by dashing ex-pirate Cary Elwes in Rob Reiner's fairy-tale parody, from William Goldman's highly quotable adaptation of his own novel.

It's a broadly funny film, but like most really enduring romantic comedies it has a wholehearted emotional depth, and an amusingly matter-of-fact faith in the ultimate triumph of love—not just romantic love, either, but also friendship and family loyalty.

Volunteers sprouting a neighborhood garden

By Mark Crudup

South Tempe is sprouting a community garden, with the help of volunteering residents and a group of gardeners working to fund equipment for the beginning process.

Soon, people can start planting seeds, and neighborhood children will get a chance to watch their own vegetables grow.

The project, so far being called "Friends in Gasca Gardens," is located on Warner Road just west of Bonarden Lane. It is named after the family that is donating the land for the garden, said Amanda Schneider, chair of the garden's finance committee.

"So far, we started a compost pile and cleaned up the area a little bit," she said. "We have approximately 28 plots right now that community members can rent and lease."

Each plot is about 4 by 16 feet. There is also a designated Children's Garden plot, as well as nine additional plots to be used for local food banks.

"We have 12 spots reserved already," Schneider said. "We also have one plot that's going to be a kids garden, and we are hoping to bring in some at-risk youth to work on that area."

In late January, the group held a "Rockabilly Chili" fundraiser for the garden, featuring a chili cook-off and silent auction, Schneider said.

"Our goal was to raise $3,500 and we raised $4,500," she said. "We ended up selling 123 tickets, so it turned out to be an exciting event."

The money will be used to grade the land in preparation for planting seeds, Schneider said.

"Right now, we are taking reservations, and people pay $50 for a plot," she said.

Schneider, who moved to Arizona from Colorado in 2001, said although she only has experience gardening in Colorado weather, there are many expert gardeners in the group who offer great tips and help others learn about what to garden and when in Arizona.

"We have a great group of local gardeners – I love the sense of community," she said.

"I think that my toddler seeing vegetables growing and seeing that process, he'd be more interested in eating them."

Alex Prescott, garden organizer and Tempe resident, said he hopes the garden will help educate other residents on sustainability.

"It's a nice gathering space for the community," Prescott said.

"The interaction and teaching that automatically happens when you're there is a great aspect."

A community-wide yard sale with proceeds going to the garden is scheduled Feb. 12, at the garden site. Additionally, a fundraiser will be held Feb. 25, in conjunction with Someburros.

Twenty percent of proceeds from customers with specific fliers will go toward the garden efforts. Proceeds from the next fundraising events will be used to connect the garden to a water source, she said.

To reserve a plot in the community garden, email friendsingascagardens@gmail.com.

The garden is on the south side of Warner Road between Rural Road and McClintock Drive.

If you have donations for the Feb. 12 yard sale, send email to amandaschneider@cox.net.

Women and Heart Disease: What You Need to Know

A regular update from the staff at Tempe St. Luke's Hospital.

Heart disease continues to be the leading cause of death for women in the United States. What once was thought of as a man's issue now kills more women than men. One reason may be that many people don't recognize the unique symptoms of a heart attack in women.

Jack Lassetter, MD, interventional cardiologist at St. Luke's Medical Center, helps define the risk factors of heart disease and the more subtle signs of heart attacks in women.

Q: What causes a heart attack?

A: A heart attack occurs when the blood supply to the heart muscle is cut off by plaque or a clot. If the blood supply is restricted for more than a few minutes, a part of the heart muscle dies and cannot be regenerated.

Q: Why do more women die from heart attacks than men?

A: The symptoms of heart attacks in women can be much more vague than the traditional movie heart attack. Women usually don't clutch their chests and fall to the ground. They present with more subtle signs and symptoms that can come on quickly or can last for days, even weeks. Symptoms may include one or more of the following:

- Pressure, fullness, squeezing pain in the center of the chest, spreading to the neck, shoulder or jaw
- Chest discomfort with light-headedness, fainting, sweating, nausea, or shortness of breath
- Upper abdominal pressure or discomfort
- Lower chest discomfort
- Back pain
- Unusual fatigue
- Unusual shortness of breath
- Dizziness
- Nausea

Q: What are the risk factors of heart disease in women?

A: The risk factors include diabetes, high blood pressure, high cholesterol, obesity and a family history of heart disease. These risk factors are significantly increased if you smoke. According to the American Heart Association, an estimated 20.9 million women put themselves at increased risk of heart attack and stroke by smoking cigarettes.

Q: What can women do to lower their risk factors?

A: Although you can't do much about your family history, you can make lifestyle changes to avoid many of the other risk factors. Stop smoking. Get active. Don't ignore warning signs. Take a moment to look at your lifestyle, family history and your general health. With this information, you and your family doctor can assess your risk and make a plan to avoid potential problems. And remember, there are no dumb questions when it comes to your health. You need to know your risk factors so that you can manage them successfully. In many people, heart attacks are preventable.

Your physician can work with you to help limit your risks but in the end, the choices you make are up to you. I tell my patients, you can drive the bus or let the bus hit you and kill you. Be the driver not the victim.

For more information about heart health, join Dr. Lassetter for "A Talk from the Heart," a lively and informative discussion followed by heart health screenings. The event will be held on Tuesday, Feb. 15, 6-7:30 p.m. at Tempe St. Luke's Hospital, 1800 E. Van Buren St., in Phoenix. For more information, or to register, call 1-877-351-WELL (9355).

Jack Lassetter, MD, FACC, FSCAI, is an interventional cardiologist on the medical staff at St. Luke's Medical Center and in practice with Phoenix Heart Center. For more information about St. Luke's or Dr. Lassetter, call 1-877-351-WELL (9355).

Views sought on qualities of new Chandler manager

West Chandler residents wishing to share their thoughts about the hiring of a new city manager can e-mail comments directly to the consultant hired by Chandler to do the search. Comments should be directed to ssatow@cps.ca.gov no later than Feb. 11.

Areas of interest to the consultant include: Key issues/priorities/challenges that the new city manager will be asked to address when he/she is hired (both short- and long-term issues); key competencies; and characteristics that will make for the "ideal" candidate.

The feedback will be compiled into a report that will be shared with City Council members and used in materials for the recruitment.

Mark Pentz retired in June, and Rich Dlugas has been serving as interim city manager while the search for a replacement continues.

Tempe offers roof rat resources

Roof rats seem to be back in abundance, and city of Tempe officials once again are offering guidance and resources to those who may be affected.

South Tempe and other city residents are urged to pick up fruit and nuts from the ground, keep garbage containers covered, clean up pet waste, store bulk foods and pet foods in sealed, rat-proof containers, and harvest citrus promptly and completely.

To help control roof rats, residents can drop off quality fruit at Elks Scottsdale Lodge 2148, 6398 E. Oak St., Scottsdale, so it can be donated to food banks, senior centers, jails and other locations. Dropoffs are accepted Saturday mornings through March 26 from 8 a.m. to noon. Information about roof rats will be available from 9-10:30 a.m. at the same location.

Signs of roof rat activity include hollowed-out citrus or fruit, rat droppings, gnawing or scratching noises around home, damage to plastics, unsettled pets and damage to coverings on electrical and other wiring.

People who suspect they have roof rats should call Maricopa County Vector Control at 602-506-6616, leaving name, address, telephone number and location of the sighting.

If sightings occur, residents should work with their neighborhood or homeowner associations to set up neighborhood meetings or citrus cleanup dates.

Call Tempe's Neighborhood Hotline at 480-350-8234 for more information on this process.

February shapes up one of the year's busiest for Corona's athletes, with the winter sports teams starting postseason action and the spring sports teams gearing up for tryouts.

Although the girls basketball team and the boys soccer team did not make it to the state tournament, Corona's wrestling team, girls soccer and boys basketball teams are poised to advance to the state tournament.

Corona Wrestling — Corona's state-champion wrestling team was challenged to defend its back-to-back state title in the Division I, Section III tournament that was scheduled Feb. 3-4 at Gilbert Mesquite. It was the first time the new AIA postseason format was due to be used to determine who qualifies for the state tournament.

Previously, school teams and individual wrestlers qualified for the state tournament through region tournaments and then went on to compete in their weight class at state. This season, instead of classes and regions, wrestlers now need to qualify at sectionals, depending on divisions. The top four wrestlers in each of the four divisions will move on to the state tournament.

Although it sounds simple for Corona's two-time state-champion team to be able to defend its title, this sectional format makes it harder to qualify wrestlers and get good seeds in both the sectional and the state tournaments.

"At this point, all the coaches are anxious about how the new NWCA database is going to be implemented for seeding in the sectionals," said Aztec head coach Jimmy Martinez. "If coaches were accurate and completed all competition, there should be no surprises. However, some coaches will not have done what they are required to do, and the AIA will have to determine how they will address those issues when it relates to seeding wrestlers."

To begin with, Corona will be competing in the toughest section based on the competition Martinez has seen in the regular season. The Aztecs will compete against Sunnyside, the Division II state champ last season and the team favored to win state and Corona's section. Also in the Aztecs sectional will be highly competitive individual and team wrestlers from Chandler, Highland and Dobson, according to Martinez.

Although Corona's goal is to get 14 wrestlers into the state tournament to earn as many points as possible to defend their state title, Martinez thinks the Aztecs will have to wrestle well and have a few upsets to advance even 12 individuals to state.

"In a couple of weight classes, we have as many as four of the top eight wrestlers in the state coming from our section," said Martinez. "Our strengths should be Simon Allen (215), Jason Landrum (145) and Ryan Cox (152). Ryan will have the defending state champion, Kory DeBerry, in his section to qualify for state."

Leading up to the sectionals, the young Aztecs, with five freshmen and one sophomore, had not lost a single regular season dual meet and did well at the tournaments. Corona took third at the Westwood Tournament, first at Moon Valley, and first at the Aztec Duals.

"We won some tough matches against good opponents this season," said Martinez "We defeated Red Mountain 31-30 at the Westwood Classic. We also lost to Mesa at the Westwood Classic 24-23, after we beat them 52-16 three days earlier.

We wrestled Mesa Mountain View to a draw, and won on criteria on Jan. 5., then defeated LaQuinta out of California by three points in the finals at the Aztec Duals , even though we were down 28-0 before coming back to clinch the title."

"I was very proud that our young team was able to get seven individual champions at the Aztecs Duals," said Martinez. "I expected guys like Cox and Allen to win but I was pleasantly surprised that Robert Butler (130), Jason Landrum (145), Ethan Tursini (140), Pablo DeLeon (171) and Steven Rodrigues (285) won."

"Landrum was also voted Outstanding Wrestler and freshman Tursini upset Dobson's Jake Allen, who is ranked third in the state at 140 pounds."

‘I just felt like Nebraska was the best fit for me.’

where he attended grades K-6 before moving to west Chandler, which is in the Corona del Sol attendance boundaries.

He wanted to honor the elementary school where he spent his early years by officially signing his letter of intent at Johnson.

After being recruited by several highly regarded academic universities and football programs, the 6-foot-3, 300-pound defensive tackle, touted as Arizona’s fifth best football prospect by ESPN.com and Scout.com, had narrowed his choices to Stanford, Oregon State, Nebraska and Arizona State University in early January.

Stanford got dropped off his list when head coach Jim Harbaugh decided to leave. Oregon State fell off next.

As late as Tuesday morning, Peat had still not decided between hometown ASU and powerhouse Nebraska.

Although he admits it was a tough decision, especially because of family and friends he would be leaving behind, Peat said he knows he made the right choice.

“I just felt like Nebraska was the best fit for me,” said Peat.

“I think Nebraska will give me an opportunity to grow as a player and to reach my own personal goals in a successful program.”

Members of Todd Peat’s extended family, left, including his football-pro dad Todd Peat Sr., left, reflected on the news Todd had picked the University of Nebraska Cornhuskers as his draft choice instead of the family’s favored destination, ASU. Peat, below, interviewed by Fox Sports, said of Nebraska: ‘It will give me an opportunity to grow as a player.’

first time is an unknown but Martinez has high hopes that his team will do well at sectionals and then at state.

"Simon Allen is 36-0 for the year having faced the toughest wrestlers in the state," said Martinez. "As long as he wrestles well, he should be a favorite to win a state title."

"Ryan Cox will have to pull an upset to win a title from DeBerry, the best wrestler in the state and in our section," said Martinez. "I believe that we should have some good results from Landrum, DeLeon and Jay Tucker as well. Our freshmen, Glenn Farnina, Zach Walton and Ethan Tursini have great records and have the potential to pull upsets to possibly place this year at state."

The Division I state tournament is scheduled Feb. 10-11 at Tim's Toyota Center, 3201 N. Main St. in Prescott Valley.

Girls Soccer — Corona's girls soccer team, sporting a 12-5-2 record, won four out of their last five matches to end up ranked No. 6 in power ranking points and was set to face off against No. 11 Mesquite in the first round of the 5A DI state tournament on their home field.

The Lady Aztecs lost to Mesquite, coached by former Corona assistant coach Scott Smith, earlier in the season 1-0.

"That earlier game could have gone either way," said Corona head coach Matt Smith. "I think we are prepared to give it another run but will need to be solid defensively, attack as a team and be good on set pieces."

"We will also have to rely on our senior group of Micah Jones, Emily Tucker, MyKaylin Rosenquist, Addi Guevara, Kendall Barrett, Colby Bounds and Sammie Weber to remind our younger players about what it takes to win."

Maybe the Lady Aztec's young team will need to remember their incredible run to the state finals last year in order to defeat their most likely second-round foe, if they get past Mesquite, No. 3 seeded Highland, on Feb. 5.

Smith admits Corona will need defensive stoppers and offensive plays to beat Highland.

"Defensively, our starting back line of Rosenquist, Dallas Johnson, Kelsey Cartwright and Olivia Montoya have been fantastic," said Smith. "Offensively, we have been relying on everyone to do their job and contribute."

"For instance, in our win against Dobson on Jan. 25, we had five goal scorers in a 5-0 win," said Smith. "Keeper-wise, all four have done a tremendous job—Colby Bounds, Kate Halligan, Taylour Rohme and Lexi Bounds.

Each has done everything I have asked, and it was probably the toughest decision I have made in my 11 years at Corona to decide to go with Lexi as the starter for the playoffs."

Smith shared one crazy statistic from the regular season. In Corona's 19 games, only one of the teams playing was able to score.

All of Corona's 12 wins were shutouts and the five games they lost were also shutout. Their two tie games were also 0-0 shutouts.

If Corona makes it past Mesquite and Highland, the next state tournament match is scheduled Feb. 9 at Campo Verde High School at 5 p.m.

Boys Basketball — Corona's No. 4-ranked boys basketball team (17-2, 6-2 region) was on a nine-game winning streak before losing to Mesquite Jan. 21. The Aztecs went on to defeat Mesa Mountain View, the leader in the Central region at 7-1, Jan. 25, by seven points, 50-43.

Currently ranked No. 4 in power point rankings behind Buena, North and Mesa, the Aztecs are in a good position to go deep in the state tournament.

Our challenge now," said head coach Sam Duane Jr., "is to keep playing on a high level so we can not only get a good seeding in the state tournament but have some momentum going in."

The Aztecs lost to Fairfax on Feb. 1, 46-51, and were scheduled to play at Basha on Feb. 3.

All-City Fall Student Awards — Seven Corona athletes received Tempe All-City Fall Student Awards at this year's TACA banquet. Haley Kesteloot and Kasey Kiefer received awards for volleyball, Chloe Hacker in 1 meter diving, and Dana Finkelstein for girls golf. Jared Hirschl received an award for cross country while Todd Peat and Andrus Peat both received awards in football. Andrus received his award for offense line and Todd for defensive line.

Boys Soccer — Corona's boys soccer team was not be able to defend its 2010 5A Division I state championship title, just missing a spot in the state tournament by .0838 points coming in at No. 17 in power rankings.

Regardless, the team came together, after a slow start and was able to win the last four regular season games to end the season with a 7-9, 2-2 Central region record.

The Aztecs started the season slow after losing some of their star players from last year's team to graduation and to club soccer. Several key players decided to play at the Real Salt Lake-AZ Academy in Casa Grande.

"The doors that the Academy opened for some of Corona's players (were) probably too good to pass up," said senior team captain Graham Hemmingson.

"I only wish that they had stayed and played in their final senior year because we would have been a completely different team with them."

The Aztecs rallied late in the season, faced with being shut out of the state tournament for the first time in years, had big wins against Basha, 7-3, Jan. 21 and 3-0 against Gilbert Highland in their final game, Jan. 27.

"Playing our last home game, senior night, we wanted to win big against Basha," said Hemmingson.

"We scored early and often with goals by Tyago Martins, Ed Magana, Christian Johnson, Drew Johnson and myself."

"Defensively, Matt McGuire had a great game against Basha. He didn't let anyone get past him, and Zach von Allworden hustled back to block a shot," said Hemmingson. "Both keepers, Keith Williamson and Brandon Johnson, each played a half, managing to stop most of the goals."
