A partnership in the fast lane

On the road to a brighter future for kids

For many, becoming a professional athlete means getting a fancy car and being able to spend as much money on the weekend as you'd like.

But for some, it means the opportunity to build great partnerships and develop a community.

Arizona Cardinals defensive end Calais Campbell has partnered with Freeway Chevrolet two years in a row to run his CRC Foundation dinner, benefiting the charity he and sister Keyonne began in honor of their father, Charles Richard Campbell.

Mike Cook with Freeway Chevrolet sponsors the event and said that the west Chandler dealership always takes the opportunity to help out, especially when it involves kids.

"Anytime there are kids with sporting teams, whether it's baseball, football, golf or anything else, the one criterion we look for is kids," Cook said. "When it involves kids we're usually interested."

Cook became involved with the CRC Foundation when Keyonne contacted him. He decided to sponsor the charity dinner because of Calais' personality and goals, as well as the message the charity delivers.

Cook was the highest bidder on a limo ride with Calais at last year's foundation dinner and elected to use the prize to give his child a ride to school, which only solidified his opinion of Calais.

"Last year I bid on a limo and (Calais) came and picked up my kid and some friends; he was really nice and humble to everyone in the neighborhood and all of the kids," Cook said.

"Then he brought them to school and talked to all of the kids at the playground and the teachers. He's just very polite, friendly and humble from everything I've seen."

Teammates and coaches joined Calais on Sept. 3 to host a dinner at Fleming's Steak House in Chandler with entertainment and a silent auction, all benefiting the foundation. The charity works to help kids get involved in school, and promotes college.

"We do a lot to provide meals during holidays. We interact with kids and help them learn life skills and activities, and ways to better themselves," Campbell said.

Freeway Chevrolet plans on sponsoring the event again next year, though Cook made it clear they aren't the ones who put on the event.

"I think it's a good partnership; it works well for us. We're glad to be a part of it and help out, but (Calais) is doing all the hard work."

The charity gave out its first scholarship this year. Its next goal is to open a community center for kids to use after school to continue the learning process. Calais says he wants to use the center to teach life lessons and skills that will translate in to a successful education.

Sports Notebook . . . with Alex Zener

Dobson, Highland give Aztecs a chance to fine-tune their game

Corona's Aztecs used creative play-calling, shifty rushing attacks, better defensive play and improved mental toughness to win their first game of the 2012 season in a 26-7 Division I victory over Mesa Westwood Aug. 31.

Coach Tom Joseph has years of crafty play-making experience in his repertoire, just waiting for the right opportunity to create an advantage for his team, one with one of the smallest rosters, number wise, in Division I football programs.

Such an opportunity presented itself in the first quarter when the Aztecs, who had been moving the ball steadily down the field in their first possession, were suddenly faced with a fourth and six.

Coach Joseph caught Westwood by surprise when he called on senior wide receiver Maceo Brown to fake the punt. The result was not only a 24-yard run pickup by Brown but a boost in the team's confidence.

"The successful fake punt by Maceo gave us back the momentum," said senior lineman Sam Radford. Junior running back James Contes capped off the drive when he rushed for 4 of his total 90 yards on 19 carries in the first of four Aztec touchdowns. Isaac Niemtschk's point-after-kick made it 7-0.

Although Westwood was able to shut down Corona's passing game, the Aztec rushing attack game was on track, gaining over 170 yards with the quickness and evasiveness of Contes and junior running back George Wright, who scored two rushing touchdowns.

Wright's first TD came early in the second quarter after Brown, who plays on both sides of the ball, tackled the Westwood player at the Warriors' 13 yard line when Westwood fumbled a punt snap. Wright's 13-yard run made it 13-0 after a 2-point conversion failed.

The Aztecs went on to score two more touchdowns—one on a 5-yard play action pass from quarterback R.J. Rhiner to Tevin Mayfield to end the second quarter and another rushing touchdown by Wright in the third. The Aztecs' defensive presence was much improved over the Basha game a week earlier. They put pressure on the Warrior quarterback all night, ultimately resulting in only 2 out of 9 completed passes for 25 total yards in the air and two sacks by sophomore defensive lineman Cassius Peat.

The Aztec defense, in the likes of Connor Stuhmer, Aaron Simons, Radford and Beau Sitton, held Westwood to under 100 yards rushing, allowing only one touchdown with less than a minute to play in the game.

"Our defense was really clicking," said Radford, "and the offense did not make as many mental mistakes against Westwood."

Against Basha, the Aztecs fumbled the ball twice, had two interceptions and were penalized 50 yards for fouls. Although the Aztecs were only penalized 30 yards against Westwood, Coach Joseph, who is known for his discipline, was expected to have the penalty situation under control before the Dobson game Sept. 7.

The next two games, Dobson at home and at Highland Sept. 14, are chances for Corona to get the kinks worked out before they face Desert Vista away Sept. 21.

"Our goal is to play as hard as we can to defeat Dobson with high-quality, disciplined play because the meat of our schedule really starts after that game," said Cassius Peat.

Marcos de Niza football — The Padres had a lot to prove in their game against three-time defending Division II state champion Chaparral Aug. 31.

After a dominating win over powerhouse Scottsdale Notre Dame 56-6 in their first game of the 2011 season, Marcos fell apart and lost 24-6 to Chaparral the next week.

This season, it all came down to big plays, and none was bigger than Marcos quarterback Josh Eckley's last-second decision to keep the ball on the last play of this highly competitive football game.

Eckley did what he had been doing all night against Scottsdale Chaparral: Run with the ball straight up the middle to score the winning touchdown and defeat the Firebirds 29-27.

He was supposed to pass the ball, but Eckley (the second leading rusher on the team, gaining 131 yards on 15 carries) saw a hole so big he could not resist. He hit the gap, stunning the Chaparral defense with his quickness, and ran 11 yards to win the game as time expired.

This game, a match-up between No. 4 Chaparral and No. 3-ranked Marcos, was a nail-bitter as predicted by local sportscasters. Altogether there were five lead changes, with Chaparral taking a 4-point lead, 27-23, with only 50 seconds left in the game.

The Padres proceeded to go 80 yards in eight plays, including impressive 44- and 29-yard passes from Eckley to Paul Elvira, but still found themselves 11 yards away from the goal line with one second on the clock. Not to be denied, Eckley improvised. The rest is history.

Eckley, who completed 11 of 16 passes for 169 yards in addition to his 131 yards rushing, was aided on the ground by teammate Maurice Lee, who gained 148 yards on 16 carries, scoring two touchdowns. His first 28-yard rushing touchdown gave Marcos an early 7-0 lead in the second quarter, followed by a 6-yard run to open the third quarter and give the Padres a 16-14 lead.

Additional offensive arsenal included Elvira with five receptions for 130 yards and Jacquese Moore, who was 2 for 20 yards with one receiving touchdown in the third quarter. Kicker Jaren Jones scored 7 points with one field goal and 4 out of 5 point-after kicks.

Marcos has a strong defense led by highly recruited but still undecided cornerback Priest Willis who finished the game with 7 total tackles. South Mountain transfer Derek Craig had an immediate impact with 10 total tackles while Andrew Rodriguez had 7 and Logan Palmer 5. Andrew Molina intercepted a Chaparral pass. The No. 3 Division II-ranked Padres are expected to continue to win their next two games: At Maricopa Sept. 7 and against Perry Sept. 13.

Tempe High football — The Tempe Buffaloes, under fourth year head coach Brian Walker, are off to their best start since the 2008 season, defeating both McClintock and Poston Butte in their first two games. Not only did Tempe defeat McClintock for the first time in eight seasons but the team is on its way to fulfilling its preseason goal of winning 50 percent of its games.

It may not sound like much, but Tempe has not had a winning season since 2004; the team won only one game during the 2011 season and none in 2010. This year's team, though, has a vision that will be hard to vanquish if quarterback Emanuel Gant, receivers Sebastian Watkins and Messiah Smith, running backs Raija Holt and Jordan Wiatr and defensive players Njeem Adebule, Ramon Castro and Talib Id-Deen have anything to do with it.

Sophomore Gant has started the season strong, completing over 70 percent of his passes in the first two games while averaging close to 250 yards a game. Watkins has been on the receiving end, catching 14 passes for 232 yards or over 115 yards a game, while Smith has also had the sticky fingers catching 16 passes for an average of over 70 yards per game.

The rushing game has started to get on track and balance out the offense with both Holt and Wiatr carrying the ball 17 times so far this season, averaging over 40 yards per game.

It has been hard on opponents to focus on one player since Tempe has had four players score touchdowns in the first two games. To make matters more difficult on opponents, different players have stepped up both times. Watkins scored three touchdowns against McClintock and Holt had three against Poston Butte, while Smith scored one in each game and Gant scored another in the McClintock game.

The Buffaloes' defense, perhaps inspired by the offense, has been in attack mode so far this season, averaging over 100 total tackles and two sacks a game. Adebule leads the team in tackles with over 14.5 per game, while Castro averages 10 and Id-Deen 9 a game.

Tempe has four defensive players who recorded a sack in the first two games: Id-Deen, Terry'on Wycoff, Richard McQueen and Sam Leha, while Smith has two interceptions to his credit and Trevin McKinney one.

The Buffaloes expected to have their hands full for their matchup with Scottsdale Saguaro on Sept. 7. Saguaro has won five of the past six state Division III championships.

Corona volleyball — Corona's girls volleyball team is off to a great start, not losing a game in the first three matches after returning six players with major roles on last season's 28-13 team. "We have a lot of senior leadership returning and mixed with our younger crew, we could have a great season," said head coach Ben Maxfield.

Returning seniors expected to have an impact right away include outside hitter Kasey Kiefer, libero Stephanie Kennedy, middle blocker Caroline Trent, setter Kaitlyn Martin and outside hitter Kraymer Johnson.

"There is no doubt that Kasey Kiefer is going to continue to produce a lot of points for us," said Maxfield. "Libero Steph Kennedy is passing really well, so that allows us to run our middles a lot, including Caroline Trent, who has returned stronger and quicker than last season."

Martin has stepped in to take the place of setter Olivia Ortiz, who is still recovering from a season-ending injury suffered two weeks before state last season; it is hoped she will be able to contribute by the end of this season.

"Kaitlyn has done a great job," said Maxfield. "Her consistency, great work ethic and leadership are going to carry our team a long ways. I couldn't be prouder of her."

"Kraymer Johnson is going to provide us with a lot of versatility on the right side and outside," said Maxfield. "She has spent the last six months playing a lot of sand, and it shows in her decision making and power at the net."

Other seniors Maxfield is counting on to provide leadership include defensive specialists Patrice Moritz and Kaileen Fei and middle blocker Taylour Rohme, who has returned to the team after taking time off to concentrate on soccer the past two years.

"We are excited to have Taylour's hard hitting back," said Maxfield. Some of the younger players have already displayed their skills in the first three matches. For instance, sophomore middle blocker Alyson Seall at 6-foot-1 is averaging a block a game. Alyson brings a big block to our front line," said Maxfield. "She is athletic, has the potential to dominate and has shown tremendous improvement in just three weeks."

"We are very excited about our freshman class," said Maxfield. "For instance, Dani Sullivan will be a great outside hitter to watch over the years for improvement. This year she may be asked to step in a bit at middle and right side."

Maxfield is expecting the Lady Aztecs' biggest regular season matches to be the usual suspects in the east Valley: Desert Vista, Mountain Pointe and Hamilton. He's predicting Horizon and Mountain Ridge to start out as favorites for the state championship but several others could be right behind, including Xavier, Chaparral and Gilbert.

Corona badminton — Corona's badminton team returns three varsity players from last season, with several junior varsity players vying for the other three spots. "This should be another great season, but we have some extremely tough competition," said coach Katie Chance.

"However, I feel like the girls this year are up for the challenge."

Expected to set the tone for the rest of the players will be this season's No. 1 player, Crystal Li. "Crystal has several great ideas to help improve the team," said Chance. "She worked hard over the summer to hone her skills." Chance is also expecting leadership from junior Julie Song, one of the players who moved up from junior varsity this season.

"Julie had a great season on JV last year," said Chance. "She has worked hard over the summer, so I suspect she will do a good job for us on varsity." Other players on varsity include Kenna Lum, Tegan Dorman, Hannah GurArie, Brittany O'Connor and Brittany Fielden.

"My returning players know what to expect and I am expecting all my players to be extremely competitive this season," said Chance.

"We have a great new group of girls this season, and I think our returning players will enjoy mentoring the younger players who will, in turn, learn a lot from our upper classmen."

Said Chance: "Our biggest challenge is probably not going to be being physically ready but mentally prepared for the season. The girls have been working hard physically but sometimes they worry too much about the competition instead of focusing on what they can do to play better."

Chance is once again expecting Corona's main competition to come from Mountain Pointe, Chandler and Desert Vista but they will also be playing competitive matches again Xavier and Millennium during the regular season.

So far the Lady Aztecs are off to a good start, defeating Desert Vista 6-3 and Combs 9-0.

They played at Highland Sept. 5 and are scheduled to play Sept. 11 at Chaparral, Sept. 12 at Desert Vista, and at home against Chandler Sept 13. All matches start at 3:30 p.m.

Renown Barrow now in Chandler

By Alison Stanton

Up until now, when people in Chandler and nearby communities needed the best possible care for brain and spinal tumors, cerebrovascular conditions or severe neuromuscular disorders, they would have to make the trek to Phoenix to be seen by physicians at Barrow Neurological Institute, one of the world's most renown centers for research and patient care.

Now, thanks to a state-of-the-art Barrow Neurological Institute office that just opened on the campus of Chandler Regional Medical Center, the vast majority of east Valley residents who require neurological care can be treated much closer to home.

As of Sept. 4, a trio of Barrow neurosurgeons is seeing patients at the new facility. Dr. Mark Garrett is on staff full time; Drs. Steve Chang and Taro Kaibara, who is medical director of Neurosurgery at CRMC, are available based on scheduling demands.

"The primary reason that we opened this new neurology office at Chandler Regional Medical Center is that there is a large population in the east Valley," said Garrett, who lives in nearby Gilbert.

"It is a great area, and people love it here. But it really does become difficult, with the diseases that we treat that often require follow-up or extended stays in the hospital, for people to always have to drive to downtown Phoenix. It's nice to have this closer to home."

Barrow opened at St. Joseph's Hospital and Medical Center in 1961 and in 30 years grew to be the world's largest dedicated center of its kind and a leader in neurosurgical training, research and patient care.

More operative neurosurgical procedures take place at Barrow than at any other institution in the U.S. Guided by Dr. Robert F. Spetzler, the institution's capabilities and achievements are recognized internationally. It also is home to the largest neurosurgical residency program in the nation.

Garrett, Chang and Kaibara say they're delighted to be able to extend BNI's reach to the populous east Valley, where they are now able to treat a wide variety of neurological conditions at the Chandler Regional location. Included among their treatment regimens are acute stroke; brain disorders, including tumors and aneurysms; disorders of the spinal cord and/or nervous system, such as tumors, trauma and genetic disorders; disorders of the spine; and neuromuscular diseases.

The 3,800-square-foot facility has six exam rooms and its doctors are on call from the hospital's Emergency Department, with which they also have the ability to diagnose and confer 24 hours a day via a computerized monitoring system.

The new office, however, doesn't disrupt the link with Barrow's capabilities at its longstanding St. Joseph's neurology center. In some specific instances, Garrett said, people will still need to travel to the main BNI campus in Phoenix for treatment—for example, if a patient requires a functional MRI.

But in most cases, he said, the patient will be able to receive both initial and follow up care right at the Chandler Regional office.

"For some time, we've wanted to maintain the same level of care that we provide at Barrow, but at other hospitals," Garrett said.

"We've always had a vision to grow Barrow to include the east Valley," Chang said, adding that BNI has had a neurology office in Scottsdale for some time.

"We just felt that Chandler Regional, with its new tower and new technology going in, could better serve patients in the east Valley, and help provide neurological care to all of the people who live here."

As Kaibara noted, there are so many patients in the east Valley, funneling all of them into one center in Phoenix didn't make sense anymore.

"Developing a neurology program here has been on Chandler Regional's radar for five to seven years," Kaibara said.

"Neurology is such a specialized field, and everyone at Chandler Regional has really been on board with us. We just want to provide our patients with a breadth of care that is closer to where they live."

Patients appreciate that convenience, Chang said.

"For the elderly population in particular, travel can be very onerous for them. We wanted to be sure they were being taken care of properly and appropriately. Having the new office in Chandler also makes it easier for family and friends to visit them while they are getting care."

Chang said the Chandler office has some technology that is not part of the downtown location yet, including electronic medical records and updated software systems.

Garrett said the staff at CRMC has been "great in their support of the new office."

"Everyone from Dignity Health (the parent of Chandler Regional and St. Joseph's, among other Valley hospitals) has been so helpful; from providing us with operating rooms to staff training," he said.

"It has all worked out perfectly, and we are all happy to be here."

NFL season opener: Lucky you!

Unless you're a Dallas Cowboy or New York Giants fan, Sunday, Sept. 9, marks the beginning of a new NFL season. With that comes friends, family, fantasy leagues—and a new hope for football fans across the league.

Get away from the stress and head down to Lucky Break, where you can experience all of the family, friends and football without any of the madness of hosting your own party.

Lucky Break, 1807 E. Baseline Road, Suite 101, Tempe, is holding a paparazzi event, with red carpet and photo opportunities for those dressed in their best football-fan attire. Even better, the first 50 fans to have their photos taken will receive a VIP pass good for special deals and privileges throughout the entire NFL season.

Doors open at 9 a.m., with first games of the day beginning at 10. The Arizona Cardinals take on the Seattle Seahawks at 1:25 p.m., but if you want to take advantage of the VIP passes, you should get there early.

Tooting its horn: Clarinet choir a 'feel good' kind of experience

By Daniel Rasmussen

Something unlikely has been bringing people of all ages together for the past few years: the clarinet. An all-volunteer clarinet choir started at King of Glory Lutheran Church in Tempe in May 2009.

These days it's still going strong, boasting more than 20 musicians, ranging from high school band members to retirees who have decided to pick up the instrument one more time.

Cyndee Chaffee, the choir's director of music, said she encounters seniors who are interested in joining but are unsure if they will remember how to play. However, she says that people are always impressed how quickly their skills come back to them.

"We've talked to 70-year-olds who hadn't played in 50 years, and no matter how long it's been they can't believe how they can remember their skills," she said.

The choir plays its own concerts at the church as well as at outreach events. These include concerts at retirement homes, recreation centers, volunteer organizations. The group chooses from a selection of religious, marching, patriotic and show-tune music, depending on the event.

The choir is made up of multiple types of clarinets that blend just like different tones of voice. These include regular, alto, bass and contra bass (or the "big daddy" for its deep tone) clarinets.

"The clarinet has a very vocal quality to it; it has a kind of warmth that you don't find in other instruments," Chaffee said. "It's a very expressive instrument that can make more types of sound than some may think."

Even though the choir is connected to the church, anyone can participate. Chaffee says that many join for the holistic benefits of music. "Music makes you feel good, it promotes brain health, and it's something that spreads inspiration to others," she said.

Chaffee says that the choir is always looking for new members of any age or skill level.

The youngest members of the choir are currently in eighth grade, and Chaffee says that particular age group is so enthusiastic about their experiences with the choir that they are encouraging their friends to join as well.

The choir practices every Wednesday during the fall from 6:15 to 7:15 p.m. King of Glory Church is at 2085 E. Southern Ave., Tempe.

For hobbyists, a place 'to make just about anything'

Do-it-yourself workshops open in April

TechShop, a membership-based, do-it-yourself workshop and fabrication studio with locations nationwide, has reached agreements with ASU and the city of Chandler that will provide access to wide ranging capabilities for innovation, creativity and entrepreneurship.

The new ASU Chandler Innovation Center, to be located in what was once the city's downtown public works yard, will offer machinery and tools to help software makers, entrepreneurs and innovators to turn their ideas into reality.

It is due to open in April.

Officials say the technology-based education and research hub, representing an alliance between Chandler and ASU's College of Technology and Innovation, will offer creative learning models and interdisciplinary educational programs in engineering, applied sciences, management and entrepreneurship.

TechShop constitutes what Chandler officials call a physical embodiment of the Maker Movement, providing inventors and hobbyists with workspace and tools – including welding stations, plasma cutters, hand tools and 3D printers – needed to make just about anything.

The facilities operate on a membership model similar to health clubs, with monthly or annual fees covering unlimited access to equipment on a drop-in basis.

As part of the TechShop deal, the college will offer free memberships to students who are taking classes at the center, with discounted memberships available for other faculty and students.

The arrangement will also increase the building's space utilization by making classrooms available for TechShop programs when not in use by ASU.

Said TechShop CEO Mark Hatch:

"TechShop's agreement with ASU, our first academic partnership, pioneers a new model for integrating hands-on making into the teaching process."

"We welcome students at all our facilities and have found that great things happen when students, faculty, industry and individual makers collaborate in the same space."

"ASU's College of Technology and Innovation offers a state-of-the-art curriculum that blends theory and practice, with students applying new knowledge in team-based projects embedded across all four years of study," said Mitzi Montoya, vice provost and dean of ASU's College of Technology and Innovation.

"Our students learn by making and doing, and we are incredibly excited to be able to offer our students access to more tools to design and build exciting solutions."

Those interested can email chandler@techshop.com to receive alerts regarding the process of applying for membership.

New Chamber exec proving her worth

When the opportunity to join the community as the new president and chief executive officer of the Chandler Chamber of Commerce came up, Terri Kimble was thrilled.

"Chandler is very progressive, and it thinks out of the box," said Kimble.

"Chandler not only has a great business climate and culture, but it also has the parks and the recreation and all those things that make you want to live, work, and play in a community."

Kimble has extensive experience working with chambers. Prior to coming to the Chandler Chamber, she served two years as president and CEO of the Ahwatukee Foothills Chamber; prior to that she was president and executive director of the Elk Rapids Area Chamber of Commerce in Michigan.

But one thing that particularly attracted her to the Chandler Chamber was the diversity of its board, she said. The board has 30 members and includes members ranging from Intel to Fish Window Cleaning to Arizona State University, among others.

"We have a wide gamut, so when we're looking at issues that are facing business, we really do have the pulse of what's going on. I'm very fortunate for that," said Kimble.

"We have a very strong board, a very diverse board, and they really work well together. They don't always agree, but it's their positive energy that's going to keep us moving forward."

As president and CEO, Kimble primarily oversees the day-to-day operations of the chamber, but her favorite part of the job comes down to being an advocate for businesses.

"I really like helping the businesses and helping them grow," said Kimble. "If our businesses grow, we grow—Chandler grows. It's a win-win."

Kimble has helped businesses in a variety of ways. She often becomes a liaison between the business and other entities, such as the city and even other businesses.

For one business, she helped set up a partnership with the local community college to develop a cost-effective, on-site training program. For another, she worked with the city to help solve an issue with a sign ordinance.

"There are a lot of people who have their hands in the pie. It's not just us (the chamber), and that's what works," said Kimble.

"We are very, very blessed with the relationship we have with the city because we do work so well together. That speaks volumes about the healthy climate and culture that's here in Chandler."

Since Kimble came on board, the membership has grown by close to 25 percent to nearly 1,000 member businesses.

It also recently became an official site for the Small Business Development Center, said Kimble. Through the program, the chamber offers a series of classes on such topics as writing communication or marketing plans, integrating social media, and capturing the press's attention, among other topics relevant to small businesses.

The chamber has a computer lab, and the classes are taught by certified small-business instructors.

It also offers group counseling, so several people can come in and collaborate and share solutions for different business projects and challenges.

"It's really kind of like a big think tank," said Kimble. "There are likely other businesses that are feeling some of the same things that you're going through, but you may not know that."

In July of this year, the Chandler Chamber assumed leadership for a year of the East Valley Chamber of Commerce Alliance. The eight-chamber organization coordinates the advancement of common business interests and also lobbies for state-level issues affecting the business community.

The Chandler Chamber is also working with the city of Chandler to improve business retention services. Together, they check in with businesses to "number one, thank them for being in business, and number two, ask them what we can do to help," said Kimble. "Are there issues that they're dealing with? Are there particular vendors that if we were to have them located here, would make it easier or more cost effective for them to do business? Whatever it may be. That's been very, very well-received."

"When a new business comes in, they want to know about the quality of your workforce, education and healthcare," said Kimble. "We're very blessed to have all of them here in Chandler."

Don't Deny. Don't Delay. DIAL 911.

Most common signs of a heart attack include:

- Chest discomfort, such as pressure, squeezing, fullness or pain.
- Shortness of breath with or without chest discomfort.
- Other signs include breaking into a cold sweat, nausea, lightheadedness, or pain in one or both arms, back, neck, jaw or stomach.

You don't have to have chest pain to be having a heart attack. Women are more likely to experience shortness of breath, nausea or vomiting, and back or jaw pain.

Eleven years ago this Sept. 11, in New York City, Pennsylvania and at the Pentagon, a typical Tuesday morning quickly became a national nightmare. A "faceless coward" attacked the United States, taking as its victims 2,996 civilians, military members and first responders.

In memory of those who perished, the Exchange Club of Tempe and the City of Tempe will present the ninth annual Healing Field Sunday, Sept. 9 – Tuesday, Sept. 11 at Tempe Beach Park, Mill Ave. and Rio Salado Parkway.

Healing Field is the nation's longest-running Sept. 11, 2001 tribute event, where one American flag is flown for every person who died as a result of the terrorist attacks on our nation. The public is invited to join neighbors, community leaders and public safety officers in a walk of remembrance through the flags.

"Eleven years have passed since the terrible attacks on September 11, 2001 and we are still saddened by the events of that morning," said Mayor Mark Mitchell. "Tempe is honored to be part of this unique event that gives community members the opportunity to remember those who lost their lives and reflect on the freedom we share as citizens of this great nation."

There will be a brief memorial ceremony that will include a presentation of colors, music, prayer and the reading of the names of the first responders who gave their lives. The ceremony will be held Tuesday, Sept. 11, at 5:46 a.m., the same time that the first plane struck the World Trade Center. Later that evening, a candlelight vigil with music, prayer and guest speakers will occur at 7 p.m.

In addition to the ceremonies on Tuesday, there will be a free memorial concert held Monday, Sept. 10 at 7 p.m. The American Red Cross will host a blood drive at Tempe Beach Park on Monday, Sept. 10 from 3 – 8 p.m. and Tuesday, Sept. 11 from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. To make an appointment, visit www.redcrossblood.org and use "ExchangeTempe" as the sponsor code. Bottled water drive Sept. 29 at Corona

The Corona del Sol High School Red Kettle Club, which benefits The Salvation Army, will host a bottled water drive to benefit the homeless during Corona's Homecoming week.

Club members are working with the Salvation Army's Tempe office, a regular beneficiary of the Corona group's year-round efforts.

This year's campaign is designed to help hydrate, educate and provide referral assistance to people in distress or potential danger.

Last year the Salvation Army served more than 7,000 unduplicated homeless people; every day, the organization distributes more than 120 bag lunches, each including a water bottle.

Katie Wilkinson, club founder and president, said the Corona group has had a measurable impact over the years. "Our club's purpose is to help others in our community. Just one bottle or case truly makes a difference."

Donations of water will be collected in Corona's senior parking lot (northwest corner of Rural Road and Alexander Boulevard) from 9 to 11 a.m. Saturday Sept. 29.

Information: redkettleclub.org or via Facebook at Corona del Sol Red Kettle Club.

MCC launches online learning system

Mesa Community College's success with an innovative approach to online learning has led to the same program now being available on community college campuses throughout Maricopa County.

The new Learning Management System was launched with the start of the 2012 fall semester.

Developers of the system say is based on software that enables a college to administer courses online as well as provide ways for students to obtain content and submit assignments.

When fully implemented, the new system, Canvas by Instructure, will be used at nine of the 10 Maricopa Community Colleges.

Full implementation is expected to occur by the start of the first summer academic session in 2013, when a system now used at those eight colleges, Blackboard, will no longer be available.

Canvas was gradually rolled out at MCC, starting with the spring 2012 semester.

Ex-Corona brothers share stage in physique expo

By Clayton Klapper

Brothers Matt and Tres Kwilosz spend the first hour of their mornings on the treadmill, stairs and bike, following up with an intense abdominal workout.

Around 2 in the afternoon, the brothers hit the weights, focusing on a specific muscle group each day. After work and school they meet up to run sprints, capping off a day that is filled with a meal every two hours.

Their dedication to health and fitness has become more than just a hobby: it's a lifestyle.

Said Tres:

"I played football, swam and played volleyball in high school (at Corona del Sol). I have always been very competitive and always want to bring my personal best to whatever it is that I'm doing.

"It doesn't matter if everything is stacked against me."

"I started seriously weight training when I was in eighth grade," Matt said. "I would wake up early, at 5 a.m., with my dad (Ken Kwilosz) to go to Life Time Fitness. I've been a member since 2004. My dad was a weightlifter in high school and he influenced me with magazines and talks about different bodybuilders."

The two have found added success recently, teaming up with Cardiashred, a weight loss product that claims to be heart healthy. The brothers are featured on the company's Website, and Matt was in the August issue of Muscle magazine as a product endorser. The product is exclusively sold at GNC, including its store in Warner Ranch Plaza at the northwest corner of Ray and Rural, Chandler.

Tres is studying to be a physician's assistant at the University of Arizona. The brothers say each of them provides motivation for the other to help spread the message of fitness and health to those around them.

"It doesn't take very long to stay in shape, but the key is to be consistent. People who go by a calendar or a planner need to schedule time to exercise like they would a meeting," Tres said.

"I personally do this when I am at UofA, because I have a very difficult major with a ton of work, as well as being a (resident adviser), and yet I still manage to go to the gym every day."

Tres said that as he works toward his career goals, consistency is key, just as he believes it is for everyone.

His training for the Arizona portion of the Men's Physique competition, held last month, represented his first time competing. He prepared for the competition with the help of his brother, whom he credits with his progress.

"It is because of him that I have made it this far, and I can honestly say I that a lot of my success is due to him," Tres said.

Matt took first place in the Arizona teen division, and they both finished among the top five in the men's division.

Now that this latest challenge has passed, the brothers have an eye on the future again. Both have earned the right to compete in national competitions throughout the year.

Cardiashred is paying for their trip to the 2012 Olympia Weekend competitions later this month at the Las Vegas Convention Center, where they will represent and promote their product.

"Remember to eat well, train hard," said Tres, "and live your life the way you want and prove to everyone that you can."

Ask the Doctor
Fad diets no long-term solution to weight loss

Fad diets can take many forms and they are popular because they promise quick results, are relatively easy to implement and claim remarkable results.

"Lose 30 pounds in 30 days!"

"Eat as much as you want and still lose weight!"

"For one in three Americans who are obese, these headlines may seem like the answer to their problems. However, the reality is fad diets can provide temporary weight loss, but the weight loss is rarely permanent," said Eric Schlesinger, M.D., FACS, a board-certified general surgeon specializing in bariatric surgery at Surgical Weight Loss Solutions at Tempe St. Luke's Hospital

Weight loss with fad dieting is usually rapid in the beginning phases of the diet, tapers off as the program progresses as the diet becomes tedious, boring and expensive. Lost weight is often regained with additional pounds. This can lead to yo-yo dieting and mounting frustration.

According to the National Institutes of Health (NIH), bariatric surgery is the only proven effective treatment for those suffering from severe obesity. Below, Dr. Schlesinger answers questions about surgical weight loss solutions.

What is a bariatric solution and who is the best candidate for these procedures? — Bariatric surgery provides marked and reliable weight loss as well as significant improvement or complete remission of most of the medical disorders that accompany obesity. In addition, bariatric surgery can be done laparoscopically in a majority of patients, with a low risk of complications and a short hospital stay. In bariatric procedures the stomach is altered. Typically, a patient must be morbidly obese in order to qualify for weight loss surgery. A person is considered morbidly obese if he or she has a body mass index (BMI) of 40 or higher and is at least 100 pounds overweight. A person with a BMI of 35 or higher with two or more serious health issues related to weight may also be a candidate. While weight loss surgery is not for everyone, for people suffering from morbid obesity, it is a viable option for a healthier and longer life with great long-term benefits.

What are the different options for bariatric surgery? — There are several different types of surgery for weight loss. At Surgical Weight Loss Solutions, we offer four bariatric procedures: gastric bypass, gastric banding, vertical sleeve gastrectomy and the duodenal switch, all designed to treat obesity a little differently. The gastric band causes a person to feel full after eating less food than previously, while gastric bypass, vertical sleeve gastrectomy and duodenal switch have an additional effect on a person's metabolism.

The duodenal switch weight loss procedure is considered extremely powerful and effective for long-term weight loss and Surgical Weight Loss Solutions is the only location to offer the service in Arizona. The stomach is reduced by 15 percent of its original size and following surgery, patients can enjoy relatively normal and free eating habits, while at the same time, experiencing a higher metabolism similar to fit, lean person.

How will patients know which one procedure is right for them? — There are many resources available when deciding which surgery option is right for you. It's important to get informed about the many weight loss programs, surgical procedures, benefits, and potential risks that come with undergoing a procedure like this. Small group seminars and individual consultations with your doctor are key to feeling comfortable come the big day. When it comes to weigh loss surgery, a one-size-fits-all approach does not apply.

What factors does the candidate need to consider when selecting a doctor? — Choosing a surgeon can be a daunting task but it is very important once you know what to look for. You will want to ask what type of procedures he or she performs, if they are board-certified, and if the surgery will be performed in a designated Bariatric Surgery Center of Excellence (COE) by the American Society for Metabolic and Bariatric Surgery (ASMBS). To earn and maintain a COE designation, surgical weight loss centers specifically are put under stringent standards of practice and overall excellence. Equally important to a qualified surgeon is also a comprehensive weight loss program.

Services should begin when you first enter an office, and continue through insurance approval, surgical preparation and surgery, and post lifestyle changes. Nutritional education, counseling, and physical exercise should also be tailored to your conditions, needs and preferences.

Eric Schlesinger, M.D., FACS, is a board-certified general surgeon specializing in bariatric surgery at Surgical Weight Loss Solutions at Tempe St. Luke's. For a referral to a bariatric surgeon or another type of specialist, call 1-877-351-WELL (9355).

Diversions

with M.V. Moorhead

A few words about 'The Words' (they may not inspire you to see it)

"Immature poets imitate; mature poets steal," or so T. S. Eliot famously quipped. Maybe, but some writers have a hard time being so flippant on the subject of artistic theft (Eliot, it should be noted, was talking about inspiration and innovation, not true plagiarism).

Even those of us who would never think of trying to pass off another's work as our own on purpose—even if you didn't get caught, there would be no pleasure in whatever success you attained—still live in terror of unconsciously appropriating a sentence, or a joke, or simply a turn of phrase from something we've read.

Thus the theme of The Words—the theft, by a writer, of someone else's words—is troubling. It's also potentially compelling, and while I'm still unable to tune into the star appeal that leading man Bradley Cooper clearly holds for many people, the movie, by the writing-directing team of Brian Klugman and Lee Sternthal, has a terrific supporting cast, and I went into it intrigued.

The result, alas, is a good-looking movie that's so banal and artificial, so enthralled by musty clichés about what an author's life is supposed to look like, that the cautionary horror in the idea never takes hold.

Cooper plays Rory, an aspiring young writer living in Brooklyn who's told by agents that his work is too subtle and "inferior" to be published (really? I didn't think there was any other kind of "literary" fiction).

While they're honeymooning in Paris—just like all struggling young writers get to do—Rory's beautiful new wife (Zoe Saldana) buys him a beat-up leather portfolio in an antique shop.

One day while rummaging through it, he finds an old, yellowed typewritten manuscript of a novel tucked away in a hidden pocket—the novel, it turns out, he'd always wanted to write. He feels compelled to retype it, his wife reads it on his computer while he's out and looks at him with new wonder, and before he knows it he's handed it to an agent.

It's a smash, of course, wows the critics, wins awards, gets the book he actually did write sold. But pretty soon he's confronted by an old man (Jeremy Irons) who lost a manuscript decades ago in Paris.

Though his lines aren't any less forgettable and uninspired than anyone else's, Irons gives them a muttering, ironic bite, like the sound of a damaged cello, that brings The Words whatever fun it has. The movie could have used a lot more of him. What really hurts, however, is the frame story through which it's told: Yet another writer (Dennis Quaid) reading from his new novel The Words, and later telling the end to a sultry grad student (Olivia Wilde).

This outer layer feels precious and evasive, and it leads the movie to an unsatisfying, anticlimactic finish—The Words ends not with a bang but with a whimper.

Um, I mean, not with a loud noise but with a soft, plaintive cry.

The Words is rated PG-13 and plays at Harkins Tempe Marketplace, Chandler Fashion Square, Arizona Mills and other multiplexes Valleywide.
