Aztecs' Duane Jr. stepping down; search underway for a successor

Commentary by onetime team co-captain and veteran Wrangler News sports columnist Alex Zener, Page 16

After leading the Aztecs to a historic four-straight state championships and earning the title of MaxPreps 2015 National High School Basketball Coach of the Year, Corona del Sol High School head basketball coach Sam Duane Jr. is stepping down.

Duane, who will remain a teacher at Corona, wants to spend more time with his family and in the classroom, and to continue pursuing his administrative certification. He shared his decision with his players and sent a letter to their parents:

Dear Aztec Family,

As some of you may know by now, I have resigned my position as the Basketball Coach at Corona del Sol. I have taken the necessary time after the conclusion of the season to make sure this is the right decision for me, and feel the time is right.

I believe I have given my best to Corona Basketball the last 12 years and have enjoyed being your coach. I now want to take some time and look at all my options going forward. It is also very important for me to finish my administrative certification which will allow me to grow both professionally and personally.

I want to sincerely thank each and every parent that has been a part of our program. Your support of me and the program has been a huge part of our success and for that I am grateful. I hope in some small way I have impacted your son in a positive way.

I would like to thank every player that I have had the pleasure to coach for their hard work and sacrifices. I treasure the great relationships that we have formed and look forward to continuing these in the future.

Thank you to my administration, faculty, staff, student body and all my coaches for our tremendous help and support. I appreciate each and every one of you!!

I hope everyone will understand and support my decision. It has been a wonderful 12 years and I will always cherish my time as the coach at Corona del Sol.

— Sincerely, Sam Duane

Duane's ties to Corona del Sol run deep. As a youngster, he served as a ball boy for his dad, Corona coaching legend Sam Duane Sr.

Duane Jr. went on to play for his dad while a student at Corona and later worked as one of his assistant coaches.

"Sam has been such a great leader for our students. We are proud to work with him every day and we fully support his decision," said Corona del Sol Principal Brent Brown. "Obviously we have some very large shoes to fill, but we are confident Corona's tradition of excellence on the court and off will attract highly qualified candidates to continue the success here."

Said TUHSD Superintendent Dr. Kenneth Baca: "I admire Sam for his professionalism and for his decision to do what he needs to do. He and the Duane family have remained dedicated to Tempe Union, giving back to our students for many years and we are truly thankful for them."

Duane became just the third boys basketball head coach in Corona history when he returned to his alma mater to take over the program in 2003. Under his leadership, the Aztecs were 276-87 and qualified for the state tournament in each of his 12 seasons.

In 2015 the Aztecs captured a fourth straight AIA Division I State Championship – it's the first time since Phoenix Union did it from 1958 to 1961. Corona finished this season ranked No. 8 nationally by MaxPreps and No. 1 in Arizona. Duane became the first Arizona big division coach to win four consecutive state basketball titles. He was named MaxPreps National Boys Basketball Coach of the Year, AIA Division I Coach of the Year and Section Coach of the Year.

Duane graduated from Grand Canyon University in 1992 with a degree in exercise science and received a Master's Degree in Educational Leadership from NAU in 2002. He was the first head coach in school history at Mesquite High School in Gilbert and worked as an assistant coach at Phoenix College and Mesa Community College. His coaching career spanned a total of 25 seasons, 18 as head coach.

Tempe Union will immediately begin searching for a new coach. Candidates may apply at www.tuhd.k12.az.us.

Just say 'know' a timely update for parents' guidance to teens

By Sally Mesarosh

“Just say no” no longer works when it comes to educating teens about today’s constantly changing drug scene. Stephanie Siete of Community Bridges tells parents to stay informed and create a village around their kids.

Today, she tells parents, it’s more effective to say, “Just say ‘know.’”

“My purpose is not to scare you but to arm you with information,” Siete said during a recent information

A new concern about alcohol is the product “Palcohol,” a powdered alcohol product created in Tempe. Palcohol has just received state approval and could hit Arizona stores this summer. The freeze-dried alcohol can be used to make any beverage alcoholic. It’s easily concealable and also easily abused if not mixed properly or snorted.

In the revised list of what are considered gateway drugs, running a close fourth to alcohol, tobacco and marijuana, is prescription medication.

In 2013, 575 million pills were prescribed in Arizona, according to Siete.

“That’s a lot of pills that people have access to,” she said. “When people die from an overdose, 60 percent of the time, it’s prescription drugs.”

Prescription abuse can also lead to heroin use. When users try to buy painkillers on the street, it’s expensive, so they turn to heroin because it’s cheaper. Statistics show heroin use in the United States has doubled in the past five years and related deaths have tripled. Overall drug deaths in the U.S. have jumped from 6,100 in 1980 to 43,982 in 2013.

Siete recommends a Cronkite News documentary called “Hooked: Tracking Heroin’s Hold on Arizona” for insight into the local drug epidemic.

What type of action can be taken to halt or reduce these figures? Siete repeated the need to share our knowledge and hold meaningful conversations.

“Tell your sister, your neighbor, your golf partner, your co-worker,” Siete said passionately. “It’s not a kid problem—it’s a community problem.”

Tempe Union High School District and Tempe Coalition collaborated with Community Bridges to sponsor Siete’s presentation at Corona del Sol.

Here are some of their top recommended resources:

session at Corona del Sol High School. “Being in the know is the key to protecting our community and saving lives.”

Siete stressed that the new forms of marijuana are incredibly potent. “BHO,” “honey,” “wax” and “butter” sound like something off the supermarket shelf but are actually slang terms for the new, gooey forms of marijuana.

Today’s THC levels from smoking pot have been rated at 15-20 percent, but with the new forms, it’s 90 percent.

And it’s no longer a bag of weed or a joint that signals drug use. Tempe police and school officials report that they are looking in lip balm containers for these forms of marijuana.

“Young people can sometimes be seen putting the wax on their lips or sucking it off of a toothpick,” Siete said.

Despite hiring worries, three area school districts announce job openings

By Diana Whittle

Alert to job-seekers: Spring is the season for hiring at three school districts serving the community.

Both full- and part-time positions are being advertised online for employment opportunities to work in the Kyrene Elementary, Tempe Elementary and Tempe Union school districts.

All Kyrene openings are listed on the district's web site at www.kyrene.org.

For job applicants looking for part-time work, the district is hiring for a variety of part-time positions, which can be appropriate for a diversity of ages and skill levels, says Nancy Dudenhoefer, assistant director of Community Relations.

"The district needs to recruit frequently for a variety of jobs, including lunchroom duty, bus drivers and club leaders for before- and after-school programs."

"Some employees only work a few hours a day during the school year, but as program offerings continue to expand, more workers are needed, even over the summer months.

"Right now, we are looking to hire as many as 75 people to work in the Community Education Department."

Dudenhoefer says that all applicants must fill out an online application, which can be found at: <http://www.kyrene.org/Page/10774>

In addition, job fairs are scheduled in the near future at the district's offices, 8700 S. Kyrene Road: On Friday, April 24, and Friday, May 8, between 2:30 to 4:30 p.m.

"It's best for applicants to get their information in before attending the job fair because all new hires must go through fingerprinting and a background check," said Dudenhoefer.

It's also a busy time for hiring at Tempe Elementary, says Kristine Jennings, marketing coordinator, because the new fiscal year begins on July 1.

Tempe Elementary employs about 1,630 full- and part-timers, and likewise does several job fairs a year.

All available positions are listed online and applicants are encouraged to review the openings at www.tempeschools.org/jobs

"Enrollment in the Tempe Elementary district has steadily been increasing," said Jennings, "so we have an ongoing need for employees.

"Our district strives to employ individuals who are student centered, driven and passionate about the work they do. Since our mission is to inspire excellence in every child, every adult, every day, we look for employees who strongly believe in this and bring it to the workplace every day."

The Tempe Union High School District also is recruiting to fill a number of positions.

"Many are not new positions—the openings are due to attrition such as retirements, transfers, resignations, etc." said Jill Hanks, executive director of Community Relations for Tempe Union.

"You'll find most school districts posting jobs around this time—even if they are considering cuts or layoffs—because you still have to have teachers and you still have to run the school."

All TUHSD openings are listed on the district's web site at www.tuhsd.org

All districts offer employees a variety of programs to promote health and well-being, such as paid sick days, personal or vacation days, an employee assistance program, life insurance, medical, vision, dental, flexible spending and 403b/457b benefits for eligible employees.

COURAGE

Some won their fight, one lost, but all waged a battle that earned them respect

Cover Story by SALLY MESAROSH

It was an evening Ridge Vanderbur would have enjoyed, filled with lively music from the Corona Steel Drum Band and energetic young people being honored by their community.

On April 6, Vanderbur, a Tempe teen who lost his fight to acute myeloid leukemia just days before, received a YouthFest Courage Award in the "Courage to Overcome Health Condition" category at the 2015 YouthFest Courage Awards and Tempe Top Teens Recognition Banquet. Tempe Mayor Mark Mitchell, who presented the award, described Vanderbur as someone everyone wanted to be around. He quoted Vanderbur's mother, Brenda, who said on her Facebook page:

"While he is no longer physically with us, the courageous spirit and inspiration that he has provided lives on within all of us."

Vanderbur's sister, along with his volleyball coach, friends and teammates, accepted Vanderbur's award posthumously.

One of his teammates, Russell Johns, 18, said he would always remember Ridge's sense of humor and how he lifted everyone's spirits by dancing when they gathered in a circle during volleyball games.

"I can't think of a better way to honor him than with this award," Johns said.

Each year, the Courage Awards acknowledge the determination it can take for a young person to grow up in a challenging world. This year, 11 young people received awards for displaying the courage to overcome physical limitations, health conditions or family situations.

In addition to the Courage Awards, 46 young people were recognized as Tempe Top Teens for their exemplary efforts in academics, athletics, arts, music, citizenship, community service and demonstration of social conscience.

Mayor Mitchell, members of Tempe City Council and the Tempe Diablos hosted the recognition, with Matt Pace of 12 News as master of ceremonies.

Randy Coffin of the Diablos spoke highly of all of the honorees, saying, "We are honored and humbled by their stories and perseverance."

The student recipients who have overcome overwhelming obstacles had advice for other young people struggling through difficult situations.

Award recipient Jessica Elkin, a young mother who attends Tempe High School, works 35 hours a week and has still managed to volunteer 76 hours this year. For her success, Elkin credits Jobs for Arizona's Graduates, an organization that provides college and career-success programming for students who have a desire to better themselves.

Elkin encouraged other students by telling them:

"The past is in the past for a reason. You have to concentrate on the future."

Courage award recipient Trey Holley from Tempe High School, who experienced a violent attack on his family, agrees.

"You just have to come out stronger on the other side," Holley said.

Another recipient, Juan Carlos Granados of the Tempe Academy of International Students, excels in math

If an event recognizing courage ever was to stand out in the collective memory, this had to be the one and English while helping out his grandparents and cousins with his calm, positive nature.

Smiles were readily evident as Tempe paid tribute to some of the community's young people whose courage enabled them to struggle with and overcome challenges they confronted during difficult periods in their lives. On hand were, clockwise from upper left, Corona's steel drum band; 11 award recipients; students' family members; and Noah Stone, who received congratulations from sponsoring Tempe Diablos.

Granados' mother died when he was young, and his father is in prison.

"Avoid bad situations," Granados tells other young people. "Use the advice of the people around you to overcome challenges."

Denise Allen, a Fees College Preparatory Middle School nurse, said she is inspired daily by the challenges another award recipient, Marshall Sanderson, faces.

Sanderson has had 15 surgeries to correct his Spina Bifida condition.

Allen said she witnesses courage in action whenever she sees his wheelchair rolling across campus.

"Marshall is special," Allen said. "He's like the Energizer Bunny—very determined."

Many of the recipients are dedicated to giving back or paying it forward because of their experiences.

Katelyn Dinkel, 18, of Corona del Sol High School, a Top Teen recipient, spends many hours as a volunteer at Phoenix Children's Hospital, assisting scoliosis patients.

She had the surgery herself and now helps others with the same condition.

"I had a really positive experience and want to share it," Dinkel said.

She said she was excited to receive recognition for her efforts.

"It's great to be recognized and see that people are realizing that teens have a lot of potential," Dinkel said.

Area boys among choir members to appear at May 1-2 performances

“Every champion was once a contender that refused to give up.” The words, attributed to Rocky Balboa, title character of the Rocky series from 1976 to 2015, seem emblematic of the Phoenix Boys Choir’s next performance that will be coming soon to two Valley locations.

The group, featuring many south Tempe and west Chandler boys among its participants, will present songs from the sporting and gaming worlds during a Spring Pops concert, “Winning Spirit.”

Audiences will hear music that personifies the winning spirit—inspiration, determination, perspiration and celebration—including music by Van Halen, Alan Menken, Queen and Shakira.

The concerts, Friday, May 1, at the Orpheum Theatre and Saturday, May 2, at Gilbert High School, are supported by the Arizona Lottery, Arizona Commission on the Arts, National Endowment for the Arts and the Phoenix Office of Arts and Culture.

Advance tickets are $28 preferred, $23 general admission, $18 seniors and youth 12 and under.

Scholarship reins handed to CdS, ASU grad

As the 2014-2015 academic year winds down, Arizona State University student Shimoli Shah, a Corona del Sol High School grad, looks toward a bright future.

Shah, who is studying finance and computer information systems through ASU's Barrett Honors College, won a $20,000 scholarship through the T.W. Lewis Foundation just before her high school graduation last year.

Tom Lewis and his wife, Jan, owners of Tempe-based T.W. Lewis, established the foundation that awards 10 such scholarships each year as a way to give back to the local community.

This month they announced they've named an executive director, Stephanie Parra, to lead the foundation.

Parra, who has a background in education, social work and non-profit management, will coordinate efforts to support an array of education and family-focused non-profits.

"The foundation really cares about developing future leaders from our student population in Arizona. We really look at students' ability to persist through adversity," Parra said.

As executive director, Parra will also oversee the foundation's annual giving budget with a focus on education, children and families. This work will begin immediately with the review and selection of the annual T.W. Lewis Scholarship Program recipients to Arizona State University's Barrett Honors College.

Shah said winning the scholarship has been an "amazing experience" and that the one-on-one career counseling T.W. Lewis Foundation provides as part of the award has been a big help.

"We talked about my progress freshman year and career goals and how I could achieve those," Shah said.

"After graduation I want to go into management consulting, and after that go up the corporate ladder in the hospitality industry. That's something I'm very interested in."

As part of her responsibilities leading the foundation, Parra will work closely with non-profit partners to determine areas of need, allocate funding and further develop the organization's overall giving strategy and vision.

"Adding an executive director to the foundation will enable us to maximize the impact of our giving," Tom Lewis said. "Stephanie's experience, demonstrated leadership skills and passion for education and child welfare make her the perfect fit for our new role."

Parra began her career as a social worker for Childhelp Children's Center of Arizona. During her four years in social work, Parra saw first-hand how education could transform life opportunities for children.

After earning her master's degree from ASU, Parra worked at the university in a number of different roles, all with a focus on entrepreneurship and leadership. Most recently, Parra was the manager of social entrepreneurship and innovation for Teach For America, where she coached entrepreneurs on pitching investors and donors.

City's economic chief to discuss Chandler growth, jobs potential

By Joyce Coronel

Chandler residents will have the opportunity to get an economic update from Micah Miranda, the city's economic director, at a Wednesday, April 22, luncheon.

The event will take place at Crowne Plaza San Marcos Resort near downtown Chandler.

Other speakers at the 90-minute forum will include Chris Camacho, president/CEO of Greater Phoenix Economic Council, and Kevin Sullivan, senior vice president of business attraction and expansion for Arizona Commerce Authority.

"The economic update luncheon is a great opportunity to get a sense of our current economic performance as well as a forecast for where we are heading.

"It's a great opportunity to learn about the efforts to attract jobs, help businesses grow and hear about economic development in Chandler, this region and within Arizona," Miranda told Wrangler News.

Economic development projects in Chandler that are part of an effort to revitalize the downtown area will be a focus of Miranda's presentation.

"The Price Corridor and Chandler Airport continue to be hotbeds for economic development activity.

"Chandler's economy shows signs of stability, and we're seeing growth in sales tax collections," Miranda said.

Admission for the April 22 luncheon is $35 for the public and $25 for Chandler Chamber members. Register: <http://business.chandlerchamber.com>

Tempe's Four Peaks wins 2nd round as America's favorite craft brewery

A national online rating service has given Four Peaks Brewing Company its second national title, "America's Favorite Craft Brewery," in less than a year.

Thrillist, which presented the award, conducted an NCAA-style tournament in recent weeks to crown the favorite craft beer in the United States.

Craft beer fans across the country voted online for their favorite brews, with more than 1.5 million votes cast.

Jim Scussel, Four Peaks' co-owner and a longtime Tempe resident, said the award was met by what many felt was deserved recognition.

"Four Peaks is very honored to have such devoted and faithful customers. They took the time to vote for us over the month of March, and we cannot thank them enough."

Four Peaks cut down the NCAA-styled nets Wednesday as the tournament winner, despite starting as a number 13 seed.

Facing some of the best in America, Four Peaks knocked off higher-ranked beers in each round including the top seed, Tampa-based Cigar City Brewing.

In the Final Four, Four Peaks defeated a number 2 seed, Delaware-based Dogfish Head Craft Brewed Ales, and then a number 4 seed, Grand Rapids, Michigan-based Founders Brewing Company.

The Thrillist championship comes on the heels of Four Peaks being selected last fall by the Travel Channel in the same category.

Four Peaks competed against 15 other top craft breweries throughout the United States in that contest.

Four Peaks has received multiple medals at global and U.S. competitions for its beer, including its flagship beer Kilt Lifter.

Kilt Lifter alone has landed five Great American Beer Festival medals.

Despite its success, Four Peaks continues to work to evolve, according to Scussel, including a Single Tank Series that allows its brewers to experiment with new batches.

Four Peaks also offers seasonal beers such as Short Hop Session IPA, Lefty's Lager, Pumpkin Porter and Odelay Mexican Chocolate Ale.

Young scholar's inspiration: Her Marine Corps dad

By Joyce Coronel

Mallory Hayhurst, a 2014 graduate of Corona del Sol High School, was only 5 years old but says she'll never forget the day terrorists broke the nation's heart.

The Arizona State University freshman is the daughter of a former U.S. Marine Corps infantry officer.

"I was watching the news with my dad and I remember 9/11 vividly. He taught me to pay attention to what's going on in the world and to love my country," Hayhurst said.

During her senior year, Hayhurst discovered that the Marine Corps Scholarship Foundation awards scholarships to the children of current and former U.S. Marines.

Some 96 students who attend or are from Arizona schools during the 2014-2015 academic year received $272,000 in scholarships from the Marine Corps Scholarship Foundation.

"The sacrifices Marines make are legendary, but sending their children to school shouldn't be one of them," said Antonio Rosacci, Arizona Campaign Scarlet and Gold Committee chairman.

"We award a college or vocational school scholarship to every eligible applicant as our way of recognizing the service of that Marine or Navy corpsman parent."

Hayhurst said Marine Corps values were an integral part of the way she was raised and continue to shape her life.

"I had a pretty strict upbringing. My father definitely instilled values of honor, courage and commitment in my life from an early age," Hayhurst said.

"I was expected to go to college and get a degree, and I was certainly encouraged to choose a career path that would allow me to contribute to society and make a difference in the world."

Hayhurst is studying political science and government and hopes to attend law school. She's also got her eye set on serving with the United States Navy Judge Advocate General Corps, better known as the JAGS.

Like many families, the Hayhursts have faced times of unemployment and financial instability. The financial support from the Marine Corps Scholarship Foundation helps shoulder the burden of paying for college and allows Hayhurst to pursue academic excellence without financial worries.

"I don't have to worry about tuition. I'm able to focus on my studies and I didn't have to go out and get a fulltime job. It's been a blessing," Hayhurst said.

So is there a future in politics for this daughter of a U.S. Marine and student of government and politics?

"I've contemplated that a lot, but more than anything, I want to serve my country," Hayhurst said, though she also admits she's dreamed of being a political analyst on television or a political scientist.

"There are just so many neat options," she said.

A competitive water skier for ASU, Hayhurst was a member of the Corona swim and dive team.

To be eligible for a scholarship, students must be the child of an active duty, reserve or veteran U.S. Marine or U.S. Navy member who has received an honorable discharge or was killed while serving.

The student must meet income requirements, have a minimum GPA of 2.0 and plan to attend an accredited higher education institute. Special attention is given to children whose parent has been killed or wounded in action. To apply, visit www.mcsf.org/apply.

Since its inception in 1962, the Scholarship Foundation has awarded 33,000 scholarships valued at nearly $90 million to students nationwide.

These students have proven themselves to be focused and career-minded, boasting an 86 percent graduation rate — more than double the national average; 89 percent attend four-year universities; and 50 percent are first-generation college students.

Corona boys basketball Coach Sam Duane Jr. knew what it took to produce four Division I winning seasons: Team collaboration over individual greatness.

To Coach Sam Duane Jr: Thanks for a career well spent

Editor's note: Alex Zener, longtime Wrangler News sports columnist, has known Coach Duane for the last dozen or so years, including the time Alex spent as co-captain of Corona's boys basketball team. Since graduating from Corona and ASU, Zener has written thousands of words not only about Coach Duane but about the hundreds of boys who played under Duane's tutelage. The following is what may be one of Zener's last commentaries on the coach—and the team—for which he says he always will have fond memories.

Coach Sammy Duane Jr., who made his mark on Corona's boys basketball program by leading his team to four consecutive Division I championships, was named MaxPreps National Coach of the Year on April 7, a fitting memorial to a remarkable career.

Coach Duane took over the Aztec basketball program 12 seasons ago, winning 275 out of 362 games—most of the losses coming in the beginning of his tenure during the formative years of Corona's rebuilding program.

During those last years, Coach Duane was able to build a winning culture based on sacrificing individual greatness for the sake of winning as a team. This culture really took hold and started to permeate Aztec basketball from the freshman to varsity level in 2010, when Corona made it to the Division I quarterfinals with a 23-6 record.

The attitude of playing as a team and winning the big games because of it was evident when they struggled in the 2011-12 semifinals to defeat Desert Vista 49-46 and went on to beat Cesar Chavez 66-53 in the finals.

The attitude grew stronger in the 2012-13 state tournament when the team had to dig deep to tie the game in regulation and take two overtime periods to defeat Phoenix Mountain Pointe by one.

The Aztecs then rallied from seven down in the final three minutes of the 2012-13 finals to defeat Phoenix Pinnacle by four points, 63-59, to win their second straight championship.

It took the 15 players on Corona's basketball team 96 days in the 2013-14 season, playing 35 games with targets on their backs, to 3-peat as Arizona's Division I state basketball champions by defeating Pinnacle 71-70 in overtime at Jobing.com arena.

This most recent 2014-15 season was hard work but awesome to watch at times as the Aztecs confronted challenge after challenge, including flying to Springfield, Mass., to take on and defeat Putnam Vo-Tech in a tight 60-57 game.

Central gave the Aztecs a hard-fought battle in the Sectionals and quarterfinals of the state tournament.

The Aztecs played probably their most complete defensive and offensive game of the season in the finals against Desert Vista, 57-32, to win their fourth straight Division state championship.

The last four years have been unbelievable to the Aztec fans, players and Coach Duane as well. The record speak for itself.

Every single team since Coach Duane took over in 2003 made it to the state tournament.

The Aztecs compiled a 127-7 record in the last four seasons and has not lost to another Arizona team since January 2013.

The Aztecs are nationally ranked in the top 8 teams in the nation.

Coming up next season: The team will lose senior starters Dane Kuiper and Cassius Peat along with sixth man Isiah Bolton and fellow seniors Sam Shultz, Trevor Davies and Tanner Millyard, but will hopefully return starters Alex Barcello, Marvin Bagley III and Tyrell Henderson along with Saben Lee, Jeffrey McCain, Jordan Bryant, Shane Grier, Nate Marshall and Jake Burroughs.

To these players, to those who have gone before and, of course, to Coach Duane, we offer thanks for a great ride and hopes that future teams will benefit from the same spirit, the same determination and the same strength of leadership that Corona has seen over the past decade-plus.

Thanks, Coach, for all you've accomplished and all you've given of yourself to make this a truly memorable experience for us all.

Softball Coach Jennifer Ray: An admonition brings tears

Corona Softball

Corona's softball team, currently 17-7, returned nine starters, only two of whom were seniors, from last season's team, but has several new promising young players, according to coach Jennifer Ray.

Returning starters and leaders for the team include Sarah McCabe, pitcher; Maggie Jackson, outfielder; Katelyn Stys, pitcher, first and second base; and Haley Vallejos, catcher and shortstop.

Senior McCabe will be attending Robert Morris University next fall, while fellow senior Jackson will be at Santa Barbara City College.

Corona has several talented freshman on the team, including Jessica Lynch who plays pitcher and first base, according to Ray. Lynch has verbally committed to Arizona State.

Another freshman pitcher who also plays outfielder is Olivia Miller.

Corona has two other freshmen who play on both the JV and varsity teams.

Nicole Neumann, playing infielder, and Makaeli Davidson, at pitcher, first and third base, wear the double jerseys, according to Ray.

Other members of the team include Kylie Holmes, Amy Surrency, Alyssa Baca, Allyssia Sanchez, Alyssa Alan and Taylor Miller.

"We are still learning to jell together but this team works hard and plays hard in games," says Ray. "Right now the state championship is up for grabs. The rest of the season should be exciting."

The Aztecs have four games left in the regular season. They are scheduled to play at Hamilton April 21, at home against Mountain Pointe April 23, at Mesa April 24 and at Desert Vista April 28.

Corona Tennis

The Aztecs took home the championship trophy in both the East Valley Invitational and Tempe City Invitational tennis tournament this season and are on their way to going far in the state tournament with a 7-3 regular season record.

In the East Valley Invitational at the end of February, the Aztecs won all five round-robin matches against Basha, Mountain View, Perry, Desert Vista and Williams Field before defeating Desert Vista 5-0 in the championship match, according to coach Rick Wanta.

At the Tempe City Invitational, Corona again faced Desert Vista, winning eight out of nine final matches March 27-28.

"Based on our current rankings, with only four regular season matches left to play, we should make the top 16 teams and qualify for the state team tournament which begins on April 28," said Wanta.

Corona's top six players who are expected to play in the state tournament are Zach Frampton, Eli Imadali, Alex Jing, Zach Lawson, Sachinda Edirisooriya and Chris Steele.

Film Fare

with M.V. Moorhead

Opening this weekend: Monkey Kingdom

Maya, the heroine of this newest animal film from DisneyNature, is very much a Disney Princess. Cinderella, to be specific.

She's a "lowborn" in a troop of toque macaques living in the ancient ruins at Polonnaruwa, Sri Lanka.

The "highborn" sisters who get to enjoy the warmer upper branches and the riper fruit are a trio of vividly red-faced hags who freely swat babies not their own and bare their formidable fangs at any would-be social climbers.

In other words, they aren't kidding with that title. Monkey Democratic Republic this isn't.

As the narration, spoken by Tina Fey, informs us in the opening minutes, macaque society is an old-school hierarchy with well-defined social roles and very rare opportunities for upward mobility.

The story follows Maya as she takes up with Kumar, an attractive but decidedly not-alpha male who is soon driven off by top monkey Raja and his goons, leaving Maya as, alas, a single mother to her shriveled, embryonic-looking, and outrageously cute male infant Kip.

Perils and hardships for the troop follow, one being a rival troop led by "Lex," a classic Disney villain with a scary, fangy, battle-scarred face.

Lex's gang forces "our" monkeys out of their ruins and into temporary exile in a nearby urban area to raid markets and other human habitations. The troops' attempt to regain their turf gives Maya and her family a chance at a better social role.

Obviously this isn't, in the strictest sense, a documentary; as with most nature films the story had to be shaped out of the material the filmmakers were able to obtain.

And in some cases—especially, here, in the scenes in of the monkeys in human settings—it seems like it must have been, if not staged, at least set up in advance to some degree.

But, as with the two other DisneyNature features I've seen, 2011's Chimpanzee and last year's Bears, no amount of Disney-style jocular and cutesy narration can detract from the astonishment of Monkey Kingdom's footage.

The directors, Brits Mark Linfield and Alastair Fothergill, captured not only intimate shots of simian society—including jaw-dropping underwater sequences of the monkeys swimming like champs in order to harvest lily-pod seed pods—but also terrific scenes of sloth bears, hornbills, a mongoose, and scorpions carrying around their hauls of winged termites like shoppers on Black Friday.

Parents of younger kids, as well as the many people of all ages who are themselves particularly sensitive to animal suffering and the harshness of nature, should be advised that [spoiler alert!] Monkey Kingdom includes a short scene of a monkey falling prey to a monitor lizard, and another of a monkey dead after a battle.

Neither are animals to which we've been previously introduced, and both sequences are handled fairly discreetly, but both are potentially upsetting all the same.

These specifics aside, I have to admit that I found Monkey Kingdom, spectacular and touching as it is, rather upsetting in general, by implication.

The behavior it depicts carries unmistakable echoes of human society ranging from India's caste system to Europe's aristocracies to America's high school cafeterias, and it calls into troubling and depressing question the long-term durability of the human democratic impulse.

Monkey Kingdom seems meant to make us chuckle at how monkeys are just like people. But what I got from it, I'm afraid, is that people are just like monkeys.

April 30 event to feature Norte student artwork, music

Kyrene del Norte Elementary School will hold its Night at the Museum and Music Performance annual event 5:30 to 8 p.m. Thursday, April 30.

Each year students and teachers work hard to transform the Tempe school into a “museum” of student art work at the kindergarten-through-fifth-grade school.

“Throughout our halls we hang art pieces that students have created all throughout the year,” said Taylor Schroeder of the school’s office.

The evening of fun begins with a picnic dinner featuring a pre-ordered Jason’s Deli meal in the park prior to the art and music program.

Kyrene del Norte’s music classes will be performing in the multi-purpose room during the evening of entertainment.

20th Annual Women in Business Conference on May 20 at the PERA Club

Each year, this powerful event brings together hundreds of business leaders in a setting that celebrates success, facilitates network development and offers incredible opportunities for personal and business growth. It combines a luncheon, trade show, training, keynote speakers and the Business Woman of the Year ceremony into one action-packed day.

Themed "Reach, Achieve, Celebrate!" the event's speakers deliver inspirational messages that touch on these elements and motivate each member of the audience to strive for fulfillment, happiness and success.

Keynote Speakers

Night Run moving to Tempe

After a long and successful history in Old Town Scottsdale, The Night Run will celebrate its 30th anniversary on Saturday, May 9, at a new location, Tempe Town Lake.

Los Angeles-based AQUAhydrate has signed on as the event's hydration sponsor, providing 500ML bottle samples of its electrolyte enhanced alkaline water to all finishers, as well as a sampling booth for spectators at the popular venue.

"Our beverage partnership with AQUAhydrate will give our participants the quality that they have come to expect from The Night Run," explains race co-director Tricia Schafer.

The Night Run has brightened Valley streets with runners and walkers on a Saturday night in late April or early May for three decades.

Known from the mid-1980s through 2009 as the "Night Run for the Arts," the historic 8K and 5K run, walk, and fitness expo were rescued by local race directors John Lookabaugh and Tricia Schafer after the original organizers let it go in 2010.

Lookabaugh and Schafer re-branded the race with a creative "night owl" theme, and formed a nonprofit organization called The Night Run Inc. three years ago, to carry on the tradition and showcase local charities.

"The course is well-lit, and the bridges, buildings, and waterfront are stunning at night," explains co-director Lookabaugh.

"We are confident that our new venue will provide a fun and memorable experience."

The Night Run is known for its tech-fabric shirts with reflective owl logo, goody bags filled with quality nutrition, a Liberty Wildlife exhibit featuring live owls, glow-in-the-dark finishers' medals, age group awards, a prize wheel, and photo-ops with an endearing mascot named "Nite AL."

The event is competitively timed, but there's a non-competitive fun run option for $5 less.

Register at www.thenightrun.org. $30-$45. $5 Kids Dash.

2 from area among Freedom nominees

Chandler Regional/Dignity Health affiliate Mercy Gilbert Medical Center, along with the Tempe Fire Department, are among more than 60 Arizona employers with Arizona National Guard and Army Reserve employees to have been nominated for 2015 Secretary of Defense Freedom Awards.

Employer Support of the Guard and Reserve, a Department of Defense office, made the announcement

The Freedom Award is the highest recognition given by the DoD to employers for their support of National Guard and Reserve members.

According to DoD, almost half of the U.S. military is made up of National Guard and Reserve members, many of whom also hold jobs with civilian employers.

The Freedom Award recognizes employers that provide the most outstanding support for the citizen Warriors. Up to 15 employers will be selected for this year's award and honored at the Pentagon in an official ceremony in August.

Nominations for the Freedom Award must come from a Guard or Reserve member who is employed by the organization they are nominating, or from a family member.

Semifinalists and finalists will be announced in sequence throughout the coming months, with the recipients being announced in late June.

Chandler schedules summer signups

Summer is nearly upon us and Break Time, Chandler's quarterly magazine, is now available. Sign-ups for summertime recreational classes begin Saturday, May 2, and West Chandler residents, along with their citywide neighbors, have plenty to choose from.

Brooke Peterson, marketing and communications coordinator for Chandler, said the city is offering some new classes, including one on vegan cooking and two others to help parents bond with their preschool-age children.

"We try to bring the latest, greatest recreational classes. Each quarter we offer several classes that are unique to that season," Peterson said.

"Donuts with Dad" and "Muffins with Mom" will be offered Saturdays in June at the Tumbleweed Recreational Center.

A little closer home for West Chandler residents, the city will offer swimming classes at the Nozomi Aquatic Center. Swimming lessons at the facility begin May 2 and run throughout the month during Saturday morning sessions as well as Tuesday and Thursday evenings.

The pool, which includes a zero-depth-entry play structure and springboard diving, will be open during weekends, noon-5 p.m. beginning May 2 for the pre-season. Seasonal hours begin May 26.

Nozomi Aquatic Center, formerly known as the West Chandler Aquatic Center, was renamed in 2012, Peterson said.

The name is a Japanese word that means hope, linking the site's history to a World War II-era Japanese internment camp that was once located nearby. The aquatic facility was renamed to mark the 70th anniversary of the camps and the state's centennial.

Retirement job a route to Marathon

More than eight years ago, Nancy Kramer was in an accident that left her with a permanent traumatic brain injury.

She found that working helped her recover and get back to daily life, which led her to a position at Friendship Village Tempe retirement community, where she's been employed for six years, working in dining services, assisting with wellness activities and participating in the community's running club.

The running club at Friendship Village Tempe, coupled with the support from her friends at the community, has perhaps been the biggest gift of all, according to those who know her. She's been a competitive runner since she was in 6th grade, and on April 20 she'll get a chance to conquer every runner's ultimate goal: The Boston Marathon.

Kramer qualified by finishing the Phoenix Marathon in 3 hours and 55 minutes. The running was the easy part for her, she said; it was figuring out how to get to Boston that became the challenge.

Residents and fellow staff members took that challenge head-on with a "Go Nancy" campaign, and eventually raised enough through a car wash, barbecue luncheon and donation boxes to send Kramer and her fiancé to Boston.

Kramer says that competing in Boston will be the highlight of her running career, and when she leaves town for Boston it will be with a full heart, knowing it wouldn't have been possible without the support of her friends in Tempe.
